

Now, See Here, Elvis!

Bill Lyon, who plays one of the leading roles in "Got It Made", appears to be getting an argument from associate Allan Shiach during rehearsal for the show. The Revue opens February 4.

Revue's Cast Decided; Staff Is Experienced

Ian Binnie, producer of the Red and White Revue's "new show", entitled "Got It Made", last night announced that the principals for this year's show had been cast after extensive auditioning and sifting for the best talents.

Allan Shiach has been cast as Benedict Jones, a singing idol.

Marilyn Lightstone plays Candy — Benedict's "one and only" in the show. Bill Armstrong is featured as "S.G.", an advertising magnate. And Linda Randal plays Vicki, leader of Benedict Jones' teenage worshippers the Benedictees.

Shiach may be remembered as the prince in last year's Red and White Revue, and also for his comedy duo routines (with Chris Bryant) which packed houses at the El Morocco for several weeks this fall. An Honour English student, he is also one of the writers of the show, specializing in "nasty songs with a political flavour."

Marilyn Lightstone, who stood out last year as the "vamping secretary" in "Reign or Shine" has also made several records including a 45 disc of Christmas-tide songs with a jazz motif called "Cool Yule."

LYON A MYSTERY

Bill Lyon a veteran of many stage plays both in Montreal and Toronto professional theatre is to play the part "of a well known Canadian public official on stage." The producer would give no further details upon the identity of this "public official."

Bill Armstrong has just finished a stint as Horatio in the MRT's production of "Hamlet", and has a long list of credits to his name. He has, more recently, played leading roles in the English Department's "The Lady's Not For Burning", the Player's Club's "Epitaph For George Dillon" (where he played the title role) and "Reign Or Shine."

RANDAL DANCES

Linda Randal, recalled for her rendition of "Ricki" in the "Open House Revue" last fall, is to play Vicki, the leader of the Benedict Jones fan-club. Linda is a dancer of note besides being a songstress.

Steve Coplan, who wrote the lion's share of the music for "Reign or Shine" is back in the musical director's chair this year. Coplan and director Brian MacDonald have been labouring for many weeks to produce some 24 numbers for the show, which, according to all reports are "better than anything from the past hundred Red and Whites."

Tickets for "Got It Made" will go on sale at the Union box-office this Wednesday.

Donations Sought As Appeal Opens

The annual Combined Charities Campaign officially begins today with an objective of two dollars per student set by the five-member student committee. The campaign will end on Friday, January 23.

During the week every student at McGill will be personally interviewed over the telephone by one of the campaign canvassers. In a departure from the practice of past years, fraternities are not being canvassed separately. Also for the first time, graduates are being canvassed by phone instead of by letter. Students are being urged to keep their appointment with the canvassers who get in touch with them.

In past years all sorts of gimmicks and high-pressure salesmanship were employed by the campaign. This year the committee, consisting of Jerry Postelnik, Chairman, Arthur Dalfen, Treasurer, Howard Cohen, Publicity, Dawn Marshall, Secretary and Shellah Pollock, Assistant Secretary, have decided to keep such tactics to a minimum.

WUS TO PROFIT

Proceeds from the Combined Charities Appeal will go to the Red Feather Campaign, the Federation of Catholic Charities, and the Combined Jewish Appeal in Montreal. In addition, half of the money taken in will be donated to the World University Service of Canada, which administers to the needs of students in less fortunate parts of the world. Through its 1960 International Programme of Action, WUSC has pledged 15,000 dollars for international student aid. All money collected by student fund-raising campaigns will be used for international aid, and not for administrative and other purposes.

The money collected by WUSC is used for the benefit of students all over the world. In India, for example, the National WUSC committee invites its local committees, located at all Indian Universities, to submit worthwhile projects to the National Executive. The most essential projects are submitted by the Executive to the WUS International Assembly, which allocates the funds.

NEEDY STUDENTS AIDED

WUS activities fall into three main categories; students health, student housing, and educational facilities. Aid may be given to individuals or on a group basis. WUS provides scholarships for underprivileged students or pays their costs at summer seminars such as the one being held in Israel next summer.

In the field of health, WUS is helping to solve the serious problem of tuberculosis in Eastern Asia. During the next few years support will be given to anti-tuberculosis programs in Japan, Korea, India, Hongkong, Thailand and South Vietnam. The need for funds in Japan is indicated by the fact that from 15,000 to 20,000 students are in need of TB treatment. Two student wards have been established, but extensive work remains.

LIVING STANDARD

In south Korea, where more than 12,000 students are refugees, many lack medical attention and are living at the sustenance level in tents, cellars, and war-damaged buildings.

Any group captain who has not yet picked up their kits are asked to do so from 1-2 p.m. today in the Union salon.

Barrette to Take Stand On Grants

Premier Antonio Barrette announced Saturday he will write to Prime Minister Diefenbaker this week in the hope of solving the issue of Federal grants to universities.

Mr. Barrette made the statement to members of the press shortly after reading Mr. Diefenbaker's reply to the late Premier Paul Sauve's letter asking for clarifications to the assembly.

The Premier did not indicate the contents of his letter to the Assembly but promised to inform the Legislature of its contents once the document has reached the hands of Mr. Diefenbaker.

If, as seems likely, Mr. Barrette's government accepts the Federal offer, a government bill will be placed before the Legislature increasing the provincial corporation tax from nine to ten percent and in a co-ordination with the Diefenbaker proposal, the full ten percent will be deductible from the federal tax on corporation profits.

The Premier also told the press that two government bills dealing with provincial aid to education will be introduced this week. One measure will set up Provincial university grants on a regular basis, to be paid out of the province's education fund. No new tax will be levied. The other bill will deal with aid to classical colleges.

No mention was made of the 25,000,000 dollars still held in trust in Ottawa for Quebec universities.

McGill Student Visits Universities To Plan National U.N. Movement

McGill student Irwin Steinberg has completed the western leg of his tour across Canada to prepare for the first meeting of the Student United Nations Association in Canada (SUNAC).

Steinberg, a fourth year student honouring in Economics and Mathematics, will now visit the universities in Eastern Canada to gain their support for the first annual conference of SUNAC on February 7. The conference, which will be held in Montreal, will take advantage of the fact that the University Model United Nations, also in Montreal, ends the previous day.

UNAC SPONSORS TRIP

The United Nations Association in Canada, an organization which promotes the work of the United Nations, is sponsoring his trip. Steinberg was also the Canadian Observer for the Association last summer at the annual conference of the International Students Movement for the United Nations.

At the conference, Steinberg spoke about the possible organization, programming and financing of SUNAC with the leaders of similar organizations from other countries. He then submitted a report to the United Nations Association which set forth a tentative plan of SUNAC. Its final form will be fixed by the delegates at the first meeting next month.

PROMOTES UN

The SUNAC will try to promote and strengthen the United Nations and in particular will try to encourage informed opinions on the principles, activities and possibilities of the U.N. It will also aim to provide a body of students actively interested in world co-operation and to join United Nations activities across Canada.

Steinberg explained yesterday that SUNAC will act in practical matters quickly, organizing a United Nations Day, forming essay contests and generally making more information on the U.N. available to the public.

SUCCESSFUL IN WEST

His trip to Western Canada, he said, had been successful, and especially in British Columbia, where United Nations activities are strong. He is now leaving for Eastern Canada, where he will visit the cities of Halifax, Fredericton and St. John's on his trip to the Maritime Universities.

He stated that the probable regional organization of SUNAC will be a division of the country into four regions. The branches at the Maritime universities will make up one division, and the branches at the Western universities another. The remaining two regional divisions will be the central-east group, composed of the French-speaking universities and the central-west group, made up of the English-speaking universities in Ontario and Quebec.

TORONTO SUPPORT

On his westward trip, Steinberg found that SUNAC has the support of the universities and that as a result delegates from across Canada will attend the organizing conference. Particularly important was the support of the University of Toronto, since Toronto is the site of the National Headquarters of the United Nations Association.

Some universities, such as the University of Manitoba, will not attend the organizing conference due to financial difficulties, but hope to participate in SUNAC's activities next year. SUNAC aims to have eventually a branch in every university in Canada where it may be usefully formed.

Commerce Elections Announced

The elections in the faculties of Commerce and Architecture will be held again on January 28. John Duverniet and Moshe Safdie are the candidates in Architecture, and Ed Blerbrier and Marlan MacDougall are the candidates for Commerce. Since only the balloting is being repeated, it is not a re-election and there will therefore be no campaigning.

The Crooked Cross

Apparently the Greeks had no word for it. It started out as a simple Greek cross, but when its ends were bent at right angles it became the swastika, and took on a sinister aspect. For in twelve brief years of cultural decay and mass madness in Germany and throughout Europe, millions of innocent people were nailed to this Crooked Cross in an orgy of sadism, aggressive hatred and political expediency. Torture and murder were indulged in for the sheer delight of it, and giggling Nazis were photographed by their fellow officers as "souvenirs" of their "better days". They were photographed committing their hideous crimes against humanity, and the photos eventually found their way into the annals of history where they still can be viewed.

Came the end of the war and the trials. A few of the Nazi bigwigs were hanged, a few committed suicide. But most of them were eventually set free. They are free today, both in East and West Germany. They hold positions in government and business and they have begun to infect the youth of Germany with their venom. This has been known by Western observers for some time, yet little or nothing was done about it. Any casual observer should have known the eventual outcome. The Yuletide season heralding the end of one decade and the beginning of a new one was marred by the familiar trademark of Nazism, anti-Semitism.

Surreptitious swastika-daubing, originating as an incipient "fire" in Cologne, spread throughout most countries and has not ceased as yet.

But who is behind this recent anti-Semitic drive? In a full length feature article last week, the Christian Science Monitor commented:

"...the observers and analysts are on much firmer ground... Their answer is that there is still an uncomfortably larger number of West Germans who either think of Hitler with unconditional admiration or maintain that his program had many good points and was particularly fitted for Germany."

More disturbing is the report of a poll conducted last year by the "German Institute for Demoskopie" which showed that 62 per cent of West Germans think that having Jews in Germany is undesirable.

Strangely enough, the Monitor correspondent does not feel that it is the revamped Nazis in Germany who are behind the recent wave of anti-Semitism. Rather, he points out:

"...hard-core Nazis cannot be pleased with having public attention called to their work by what they probably consider unnecessary provocations. In contrast to the young hoodlums who, as public reaction shows, are swimming against the current, they have for the past nine years made a determined effort to reach their goal by swimming with the current."

He then goes on to describe no less than four European organizations of neo-Nazis or neo-Fascists who are making plans for taking over Europe under a Nazi-type government. One organization put itself on record as being against "Bolshevik mongrels and capitalist Negroes". A recent survey shows that West Germany has 30 periodicals, 20 book clubs, 47 publishing houses, and 120 noted authors and editors serving the Nazis.

It would be rather an understatement, on the basis of these facts and figures, to conclude that Nazism is dead. On the other hand, it would seem that recent public displays of anti-Semitism were created by the "lunatic" and "hoodlum fringe", and not by the far more dangerous group who dream of a united Europe under Nazi dictatorship as a "third bloc" in the Cold War.

But, hoodlums or not, the recent wave of swastika planting leaves nothing but a bad taste in our mouths. Even the McGill campus has not been left untouched. Recently we were dismayed to see a swastika and the following inscription on a desk in the Physical Sciences Center:

"We gave you Jerusalem, give us back McGill."

And another recent act of anti-Semitism was in a graveyard near Chicago, where swastikas were painted on headstones. How ironic! A Nazi symbol on a tombstone! Precisely where it belongs.

The Lizotte Affair

by JOEL ARTHUR-ROBINS

"The unique nature of politics in this province was dramatically evidenced once again last week when Dr. Fernand Lizotte, 55-year-old MPP for L'Islet riding, announced to the parliamentary press gallery in Quebec that he was resigning his seat in the legislature. In explaining the drastic move, Dr. Lizotte said he wanted to remain honest "like the late Mr. Duplessis" and he found this intellectual honesty incompatible with serving under Premier Barrette. His honesty, he submitted, wouldn't allow him to remain in the House, because the majority of National Union MPP's "did not have the freedom to choose the man we wanted for Premier (sic)."

When the Lower House adjourned for the week-end, Speaker Maurice Tellier told the press that he had not yet received Dr. Lizotte's resignation. Indeed, from latest reports, it is apparent that the member for L'Islet has been induced to "reconsider". But even if he does not eventually resign, Dr. Lizotte's surprising statement of last week deserves some critical comment.

The statement deserves comment from two points of view: firstly, as a divulgement of caucus proceedings; and secondly, as an explanation of Dr. Lizotte's reasons for "resigning". Firstly, then, it should be noted the physician's statement rendered public the purely private proceedings of his party's caucus. There is of course no official law or rule against such indiscretion. But then again so little of the Canadian parliamentary framework is based on written rules that one can hardly judge political behaviour entirely by criteria which appear black or white. Dr. Lizotte's action, therefore, should be evaluated by its relation to the conventional nature and purpose of a party caucus. In his classic The Government of Canada, Professor Dawson put the matter this way:

McMaster PC's Accuse Liberals

HAMILTON — Jan 15 — (CUP) The leader of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation is willing to debate an allegation that the Canadian University Liberal Federation retains an advertising agency to draw up its political pamphlets, according to the local PC leader.

Glenda Casson, president of the McMaster PC Club, said that Ted Rogers, PCSF leader, "referred to the fact that the CULF makes use of an advertising agency to write its material, rather than using solely the literary contributions of the students, as is the democratic practice of the PCSF." This reference is said to have been made in October.

Miss Casson, stated that Mr. Rogers is willing to meet Tom Sommerville, CULF head, at any time, and any place to debate the issue and bring it before the public. However, Peter Cadeau, local Liberal leader, said this week, "Mr Rogers has never challenged Mr. Sommerville in writing or by any other formal means. His charges, which he has never defined, have been made only in speaking to Conservative Clubs."

Cadeau also denied the charges when they were first voiced, and further Liberal denials were heard Oct. 27 when the Honorable Lester Pearson, told McMaster students that such statements were false. Nov. 14, Jim Scott, at the Ontario regional CULF held in Hamilton, also declared the Conservative charge to be in error.

Cadeau has produced copies of the pamphlets in question for the campus paper The Silhouette. The first was the federation's monthly news letter, of which he said, "For a little over a year the news letter has been solely a student publication. If there are no contributions received from the students, the letter cannot appear. McMaster is scheduled to write the February issue of the letter."

Concerning the second CULF publication, he explained, "Our recruiting pamphlet, which is sent out every September, has not been changed in content for some years. It is simply a description of the CULF. This admittedly has not been done by a university student."

Political Polemics

"The first of these aids (for the Cabinet to maintain) unfaltering and unruffled party support is the parliamentary caucus... It is true that the member who attends these meetings is allowed and expected to express his views... But he pays well for these facilities. In return for them... he tacitly agrees to accept the decision of the caucus as final..."

At the Union National caucus last week, members were invited to express their views. Dr. Lizotte apparently felt that it would be inexpedient for him to take advantage of the opportunity. Did this justify his behaviour one week later? The reader should draw his own conclusions.

Against that background, Dr. Lizotte's statement should be examined from a second point of view, that is, as an explanation of his intended resignation.

Here the reader should ask himself some questions. For example, why did Dr. Lizotte wait a full week to express his displeasure with the manner in which Premier Barrette was selected? Why did he sign the petition which indicated unanimous party approval of Mr. Barrette? For someone who has been an MPP since he defeated former Liberal leader Adélard Godbout in 1948, can "undemocratic procedure" be a valid reason for resignation in 1960?

Did the private members have any more to say about who should be their leader under the Duplessis and Sauvé regimes than they had last week?

When these questions are answered, at least one other circumstance should be considered. That is the fact that L'Islet riding, represented by Dr. Lizotte, forms a huge chunk of the federal constituency (Montmagny-L'Islet which currently seatless Liberal Leader Jean Lesage held for more than thirteen years.

If Lesage decides to run in L'Islet next June, things will look very fishy indeed.

Talent Shows As Blues Defeat Redmen By Wide 8-2 Margin

by HENRY MINTZBERG
Sports Editor

Determination met talent at the McGill Winter Stadium on Saturday evening, and the latter easily proved to be superior with an 8-2 win.

Talent came in the form of the University of Toronto Blues, the crew cut boys from the "biggest little city in the world". Their opponents, the McGill Redmen, were just no match for a team that is stocked with some of the finest amateur hockey talent in the country.

The Blues proved to be one of the hardest shooting clubs seen around the circuit in a long time. Jim Murchie, Howie Roth and friends cut loose with shots that travelled quickly and ended up exactly where they were meant to end up. The Blue's passing was crisp throughout the game, and the defence led by veteran Harry Neale, who was easily the best man on the ice, was sufficient, with the exception of a few lapses.

The Redmen played well, but were outclassed. The defence went to sleep on more than one occasion, but the forward lines skated hard and gave Toronto goaler Bob Giroux a busy night. They could not, however, put the puck in the net on all but two occasions. Time and again they were thwarted dead in front of the cage by excellent goaltending, or by some stroke of bad luck.

The third Redmen line of John Gilfillan, Colin Moseley, and Daragh Vanplew came up with some fine hockey on occasion, keeping strong pressure on the Toronto net for long stretches. Forwards Joe Irving, Bruce Hutchison, and Gordie Merritt played well, while goalie Alex Herron was sparkling on many occasions. Leo Konyk possesses the hardest shot on the club, but has trouble controlling it.

The Blues took a 3-0 lead in the first period, but the Redmen swarmed around the Blue net late in the period, and Tim Peters finally scored with two seconds left from Hutchison and Konyk. Toronto added 4 in the second frame and the teams each counted one in the third to make the total 8-2. It was Konyk from Peters and Irvin on a long, low shot in the final period.

For the visitors, Roth was the big gun with 3 goals and an assist. Neale had a goal and 3 assists, while Jim Murchie hit for 2 and 2. John Gatter had a goal and 2 assists and the other Toronto goal went to Frank Sullivan.

The Redmen meet the high flying Laval Carabins at the MWS on Wednesday evening.

Basketbelles Triumph over Queen's

by BERTHA KALIFON

The only bright note for McGill in the tourney was the outstanding performance of the Senior Basketball team which soundly walloped Queens' 27-18. McGill, fresh from a victory against the "Y" Thursday, led throughout the game as the forward line continuously clicked for the payoff. At half-time McGill led 12-9, thanks to the eight point effort of Anne Hewett, a third year Phys. Ed. student.

In the second half the gap began to widen as McGill's defense thwarted the efforts of Barb Howies and Joan Atwood. At this point of the game, the potential of guards Marion English and Ruth Wisse was tapped to its fullest.

Anne Hewett continued to humble the Queens' defense with some slick ball handling and play around the baskets. Time began to run out and the gap seemed to grow bigger. Queens' did not aid their own cause as McGill capitalized on their fouls. The final count-McGill 27, Queens' 18.

Anne Hewett led the winners with 12 points followed by Nancy Reid with nine, seven of those coming as a result of free throws.

The rest of the scoring was divided among Linda Cassidy, Jean McMichael and Barb Gatehouse.

Barb Howies was the top sniper for Queens' with 8 markers, followed by Joan Atwood with 6. The McGill defensive team was continuously on their toes, completely out-maneuvring Queens': Marion English and Mary Lawson were outstanding in nipping balls off the backboards. The Elliott twins, Nan and Jan, perennial Queens' stars, turned in Gill charges, should be commended on the fine team that she has turned out this year.
